BONDS DECLARED FORFEITED

Came to Detroit With the Diamonds In His Shoes, But Was Caught and Made to Disgorge to the Custom House Officers.

Detroit, Mich., June 19.-The claim of William Rosenberg of New York to 581 diamonds said to have been smuggled into this country by one Louis Busch, is now in the hands of Judge Swan, the matter having been given a hearing in the United States district court yesterday afternoon.

Busch, who was indicted on the charge of smuggling the diamonds and released on $5,000 bail, was to have appeared yesterday morning for trial, but failed to show up, so his recognizance was forfeited and a capias issued for his re-arrest. Attorney G. F. Robinson appeared for both Busch and Rosenberg and could not understand why the former did not put in an appearance. It is claimed that Busch was acting as agent for Rosenberg and was taking the diamonds from New York to other American cities.

Van Antwerpen & Van den Bosch of Antwerp also claim the diamonds and say that they were beaten out of them by Max Hurvich, who gave $10,000 cash and a worthless note for a similar amount for the stones. A BEAUTIFUL FARM

With a Long and Gruesome Tale of Death and Disaster.

Metamora, Mich., June 18 .- Dr David Stone of Bay City has sold his Riverdale stock farm here to a Mr. Lindzy of Cleveland; consideration, $13,000. It is a beautiful farm and has been the home of many heartaches. It was where Mont Wickham was paralyzed 14 years ago by a grain binder and has never recovered; where Wm Merryweather was kicked by a horse on the leg, which withered away and death resulted; where Mrs. Frank Arnold's arm was unjointed at the shoulder and removed, death result ing; where Mrs. David Campbell lived at the time of the terrible Saginaw street car disaster when Mrs. Camp-

Humphrey was conducted from the Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. An immense concourse of people turned out, filling the church.

Services were conducted by Rev. E. M. McMillin, pastor of the church, asby Dean C. H. Channer of sisted Christ Episcopal church. The printers of the city, the Ladies' Study club, Woodbury post, G. A. R., and Relief corps attended. The guard of honor from Flint was given a prominent position in the church. The floral emblems included pieces from the state department of the G. A. R. and W.

R. C. The burial was to have been private, but fully 3,000 people went to the cemetery. The bodies were buried in one grave between the late Tom S. Applegate and Gen. Wm. Humphrey.

The Obsequies at Flint.

Flint, Mich., June 17.—The funeral of Major George W. Buckingham and his daughter Anna took place Sunday afternoon at 3:30 from the family residence on Court street east. The house was filled with relatives and immediate friends, and many sorrowing citizens were gathered in the vicinity. Rev. Chas. A. Lippincott, assisted by Rev. James Gate Inglis, officiated. There was a profusion of floral tributes, among those sending them being Senator James McMillan, the Flint Business Men's association, the Retail Clerks' union, the Traveling Men's association, the G. GOV. BLISS CABLES SYMPATHY

It is Expected That the Pingrees Will Reach the Bedside of the Sick Man by Next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Detroit, June 18.-The following dispatches have been received here: London, Eng., June 17, 7 p. m.-Ex-Gov. Pingree's condition is no more satisfactory than it has been for the past 24 hours.

H. S. Pingree, Jr., said this evening: "Father seems about the same, except set him gently down on a small table that I think he, is weaker even than beside him. vesterday."

Dr. Mills said to a representative of the Associated Press: "There is no review this line today, and if your sumaterial change in thepatient, except that the constant drain on his constitution is proving a most difficult problem for his physicians to combat." London, Eng., June 18.-Ex-Gov. Pingree's physician left him at mid-night last night. There is continued apprehension as to his condition. The strongest drugs have failed to check the dysentery, and the only hopeful symptom is that the patient is enabled freely to partake of nourishment.

When Frank C. Pingree yesterday dent Lincoln took the boy into his priforenoon showed Mrs. Hazen S. Pinvate apartments and introduced him to gree a copy of a cablegram from her Mrs. Lincoln. "The information that the ex-governor was 'slightly weaker' was what caused Mrs. Pingree to positively announce her intention of making the were conspicuous traits, not always ocean voyage, notwithstanding her agreeable to some of his able but worown frail health," said Frank C. Pingree yesterday afternoon.

Accompanied by Mrs. Hazen S. Pingree and Miss Hazel Pingree, the exgovernor's only living daughter, Frank C. Pingree left for New York city on a Michigan Central train at 4:25 standard yesterday afternoon. They will sail tomorrow on the American line steamer St. Paul, for London, where the ex-governor lies dangerously ill at the Grand hotel fronting Trafalgar square

Carl E. Schmidt, a close friend of the Pingrees, accompanied Mrs. Hazen S. Pingree to the train. Mrs. Frank C. Pingree, John B. Howarth, of the shoe manufacturing firm of Pingree & Smith, and Robert Oakman were also there to see the party off. Everybody expressed hope that the members of the party would find the ex-governor greatly improved and ready to start craft when suddenly they stopped and for Detroit upon their arrival in London.

How a Yankee Did It BBB BY M. QUAD. Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I was in the marine hospital at Callao, Peru, when war was declared on Chile and was just able to limp around when two of the Peruvian gunboats were chased into port and the Chilean man-of-war Vengeance took up her station to blockade. There was a third gunboat in the harbor, and there was a great deal of boasting as to what the trio would do when they got ready to pitch in. The very least they would do would be to sink the Chilean within a quarter of an hour. The people foamed and raged, and the navy waited. Those gunboats had no business to go out against that modern ironclad, armed with the latest and most powerful guns, and their officers knew it, but there came a day when public opinion drove them out. The fight lasted 20 minutes. One gunboat got back to sink in the harbor, while the other two went down outside. The people were fairly wild over the defeat, and women as well as men howled for vengeance.

The day after the fight, while I still had my quarters in the hospital, one of the lady visitors happened to speak to me and discovered that I was an American. She began talking of the fight, and I never saw a madder woman. She was grieved, humiliated and angered over the defeat of her countrymen, and when I sided with her it brought out a startling proposition. She was the widow of Calinte, of vast wealth and much social and political influence and believed that the defeat of the Peruvians was caused by the timidity of the admiral. She asked me if it was not possible that the Vengeance could be blown up, and when I replied that it was possible what did she do but offer me every chance to bring about such a calamity. That to say where the one leaves off and the meant the use of a steam launch which other begins. Here is how this curious she owned, with all the money necessa- pedigree first worked itself out: In ry to fit her as a torpedo boat, and $50.-000 cash in hand if I succeeded. The old girl fairly took my breath away as producer and consumer with metal imshe piled up the business, and, having plements, as it still is in central Africa once got the idea, she would not let go of it. She insisted that I get into her carriage and drive home with her, and then she sent for half a dozen of her most influential friends and demanded pose, but after a time, with the prothat I lay before them a plan and at

The front is slashed at either pass, and I sat at the tiller and held a side and in the center, revealing inserstraight course for the spot where the tions of gathered pale blue chiffon.

Vengeance had been seen as darkness closed in. You need not ask if I was afraid. I was. My teeth chattered and my limbs trembled, and in my desperation I wished it was all over. When I had run out four miles, as] judged, I slowed down to half speed. Another half mile, and I was moving through the water like a log. There was something of a fog outside, and I was within 300 feet of the steamer when I caught the glare of her lights. I was making for her broadside on, but I changed the course and quietly approached her stern. I made the last hundred feet almost by inches. Every second I expected to be hailed and fired on, but to my amazement no lookout seemed to be kept. I was that wrought up that I wanted to scream out for relief, and my heart pounded at my ribs until I winced under the blows. I wondered at my courage in going ahead, but go ahead I did until I finally felt rather than heard the end of the torpedo spar strike against the iron side of the ship. I was fairly under her counter when I pressed the button. There was a mighty roar, followed by a flash, a crash and a hundred screams, and then my life was blotted out.

It was morning when I lived again, and I was in the cabin of an English merchant vessel. I had been picked off a piece of cabin wreckage at daylight, wreckage from the cabin of the Vengeance. There was no other man afloat, and how I had reached that wreckage and clung to it through the night Providence alone can tell. I was not greatly injured, but I was carried to Lon- and cream lace borders the decolletage. don, and it was only after reaching that port that I learned I had sent the man-of-war to the bottom and earned my reward from Donna Calinte. When I could return to Peru for it, the war was over, the Chileans had conquered, and the donna no longer had a dollar she could call her own. I had simply shown her weakkneed countrymen how

Pretty Silks For Women.

The prettiest things imaginable to be found now for waist materials are the Japanese corded silks. The cords in these have been growing heavier and heavier, and the silks now have considerable body, a great advantage, as it gives them a style when made up and particularly after laundering that they would not have otherwise.

Silks in white with the cords in plaids are particularly attractive. for they are serviceable as well as pretty. Nothing is more satisfactory than a white silk waist, and nothing is more expensive for the average womàn, for i white waist must be immaculate to be decent, and it is almost impossible to keep it so. The Japanese silks will wash. The silks in the colors are very beautiful. The prettiest are in stripes, in two shades usually of the same color, separated by cords of white.

Spurring my horse to the top of the bluff, I saw before me a level tableland several hundred yards in extent flanked upon its farther side by a deep and tortuous ravine. The tableland was entirely devoid of vegetation or cover of any sort. Not so much as a clump of, cactus or a bunch of soapweed relieved the monotony of its level.

About 50 yards away toward the ravine lay an object almost the color of the prairie itself which at first I thought was a stone, but which on a second look I discovered to be a jack rabbit. He was squatting down, his long ears folded back along his body, motionless. The mystery of the eagle's queer movements was revealed. It intended to dine on rabbit meat.

My horse had hardly come to a stop when the eagle, apparently oblivious of my presence, swooped fiercely down upon its prey. The rabbit passively awaited the onslaught. Straight as a falling shell the great bird pounced down. It was almost on the rabbit and seemed about to seize him when suddenly the long ears unfolded and a streak of gray flashed upward through the air. It was a tremendous leap, five feet at the very least, and so correctly timed that the huge bulk of the eagle swept on beneath him, and he dropped back unharmed. The rabbit instantly darted at full speed toward the ravine. He ran 25 or 30 yards before the eagle was able to turn and renew the attack. The rabbit was apparently watching every move of his enemy, for at the very instant the eagle made toward him he stopped and, squatting down as before, again awaited the foe.

As the eagle swept downward for the second time I saw that it would pass far enough above the rabbit to seize him should be attempt to leap upward, as before. But the rabbit instantly divined the eagle's purpose, and this Again the rabbit darted toward the rastopped to await the onslaught.

DEGENERATÉ PLANTS.

The Potato and Sugar Cane Losing the Seed Producing Power.

The potato has been propagated for so many years by sprouts which start from the eyes of the tuber that potato seed is becoming almost unknown even in the farming districts where these useful vegetables are the chief agricultural product. It happens also that sugar cane has been subjected to a similar treatment except that the sprouts from which the plants are reproduced have started from the joints of the cane which have been planted instead of seed.

In both instances there were practical reasons for the methods of propagation-namely, that merchantable potatoes and sugar yielding canes were originally quickly produced by the planting of sprouts, while seed plantings necessitated a considerable delay.. After hundreds of years of such plantings botanists have discovered that both plants have nearly lost the seed producing faculty and that the few seeds which occasionally appear are generally unfruitful. In the case of the potato this is particularly noticeable, as in a great majority of instances the blossoms wither and drop off without the development of the grapelike fruit which should contain the seeds. Yet this discovery of the botanists would not seriously affect the practical farmer were it not that it has revealed another fact equally important. The second discovery, briefly stated, is that constant reproduction from sprouts, like inbreeding in the case of animals, results in degeneracy and ultimately in the disappearance of the species unless it is revived and renewed by the crossing of seedlings.

Particular attention has been given to this matter in the laboratory of economic botany at Harvard university and resulted in the sending of a representative to Java, where the seed of the sugar cane is still being cultivated, with the result that a cane exceptionally rich in sugar is produced. Through the efforts of Mr. Oakes Ames, assistant director of the Harvard botanic garden, specimens of fruitful seed have been secured in Cuba, and the restoration of the plant has been undertaken in a scientific manner. The improvement of the potato has at the same time been undertaken by Mr. Luther Burbank of Santa Rosa, Cal., an enthusiastic horticulturist who has undertaken the perpetuation and improvement of the potato seed.

What New York Misses. John W. Alexander, one of the most prominent American painters, assertspublicly that the cause of art receives. more intelligent and liberal support in Philadelphia, Pittsburg and St. Louis than it does in New York. In a recent address Mr. Alexander said that thereis rapidly coming to the front in France a school of young artists whose work is unknown to New York while perfectly familiar to Philadelphia, Pittsburg and even St. Louis. "These cities," he continued, "see work that never comes to New York, because their local art societies maintain European agents, who, as soon as any picture or statue attracts attention, make every effort to secure it for one of their exhibitions. Such works of art pass through New York under bond on their way to other cities and return through New York, but the metropolis never sees them."

who knew nothing of naval affairs and had never been aboard of a man-ofwar and had no claim to ingenuity. I knew absolutely nothing of torpedoes. and instead of a plan I had only an idea. That was good enough for them. however. They had heard of the cute Yankee and believed that he could accomplish anything he set about. I had no more idea than the man in the moon of going into anything seriously, and vet two days later found me "bossing the job." I had offered my services to fit out a launch and run her out and blow up the man-of-war, and the president of Peru wasn't in it with me for popularity. It took all the police force of Callao to keep the enthusiastic population off my feet and save my arms from being paralyzed. In my teetotal ignorance I was wise

enough to assume to know it all, and that passed for the brightest sort of acumen and the most solid nerve. I soon discovered, however, that it wasn't necessary for me to know much and that previous experience was not demanded. The launch was a fair sized one, using naphtha and therefore smokeless, and but few changes were necessary to fit her with a torpedo. There were naval officers at hand who knew all about torpedoes, spars and electricity, and, seeming to work under my direction, we had the launch fitted within a week. A spar was solidly affixed to her bows and projected a distance of 30 feet. To the end of this was attached an iron torpedo containing 120 pounds of giant powder, which was to be exploded by electricity at the moment of contact with the man-of-war. I had counted on a crew of three, one to fire and one to steer, while I would con the launch into position and press the button. When we were all ready, not a man could be found in Callao to go with me. As high as $10,000 was offered, but there was no moving a patriot. It was considered a sure thing that | meeting in a Yorkshire village well the launch would be blown to pieces along with the blockader, and, although all loved their country, they didn't want any sure thing in theirs.

In this emergency and thinking to put the men to shame Donna Calinte came forward and offered to go along, and she was very much in earnest too. The scheme didn't work. The men still hung off, and under no consideration would I have taken a woman along. The affair was at a dead standstill when I decided to go alone. I had the electric wires run aft to the wheel, and one night at 10 o'clock I left the wharf for a five mile run through the darkness and against a choppy sea by compass. There had been so much talk about the enterprise that I expected to find the Vengeance on the alert and fect, for it touched the pockets as well to be discovered and sunk before I as the hearts of those present.

Manchester, Mass., June 19.-To the Editor: Ex-Gov. Pingree's death, so unexpected and under such sad circumstances, will bring sorrow to the hearts of all citizens of Michigan. His family have my deepest sympathy .-James McMillan. Hon Don M. Dickinson, among other things, said of the late ex-governor: "It is hard to realize that his familiar figure will pass in and out among us no more, and that the unique and healthful influence of his personal presence in our politics has forever passed away. "That he was destined to be a more potent factor in public affairs than ever in the past I never doubted. He was sometimes wrong, but always honestly so. When wrong, it was usually in methods, but rarely, if ever, in the ends he sought.

"It is doubtful whether the death of any public man would come as a personal grief to as many people in this state as will this sad news." Congressman Washington Gardner

"Hazen S. Pingree was the most unique figure that ever occupied the governor's chair in Michigan. Many who differed from him in his measures and methods will sincerely mourn him as an honest man, an enterprising cit izen and a public-spirited character who linked his name with that of his adopted state in two hemispheres." Mt. Clemens, Mich., June 19.-The death of Gov. Pingree removes from public life a great and good character. His career since his first entry into the politics of Michigan has been that of a man of large statesmanship and political integrity. His personal characteristics were those of commanding of a tragedian. The sparrows would syssuperiority and enforced respect even from those who disagreed with him in many things. His death is a loss to

STANDARD TIME.

To Ascertain and Promulgate It Is a Costly Task. "What time is it?" Few questions are more common than this, and yet each day the United States government goes to a great expense in giving it an official answer. To ascertain the instant when it is noon on the seventyfifth meridian and to send that information all over the country is a great and a costly task. The astronomical observatory in Washington computes the true time, which is thence transmitted by electricity to every important

About five minutes before the Washington noon the telegraph companies cut off all their regular business except on lines where they have more than one wire. They then connect all important points, from which there may be numberless ramifications, with an electric wire going into the great clock in the observatory so that all over the country its tickings may be heard. For the ten seconds just before 12 o'clock there is silence, which is broken by the "noon beat." Regular business is then resumed.

In some cities the wires connect with a time ball which drops with the noon beat. The time ball in Washington over the state, war and navy department building is three feet in diameter and can be seen from all parts of the city. Crowds frequently gather about to see it fall, a distance of 21 feet, high in the air. The man whom some of the spectators suppose to be dropping the ball is merely there to hoist it again to its place.

In the building beneath are 23 clocks which are each day automatically corrected by it. An electrical device "sets" them, placing hour, minute and second hands exactly vertical at the instant the ball drops. The hands that are too fast are pushed back, and those that are slow are thrust forward. Although Washington is on the seventy-seventh meridian, the noon hour is for convenience computed for the seventy-fifth, the time standard for the eastern part of the United States. In the central belt, which is governed by the ninetieth meridian, the signal from Washington means 11 o'clock, in the Rocky mountain belt it is 10 o'clock, and on the Pacific coast line it is 9.-

"Some time ago I had occasion to observe an interesting change in the habits and temperament of a crane which had been picked up in the swamps of Arkansas," said a gentleman from one of the towns on the Mississippi river, "and the change was startling too. The crane was placed in a small park which was literally filled with English sparrows. These pests did not like the visitor from the lowlands, and they made daily assaults on the poor bird. The crane was a pretty fowl, long, slender, pure white and with the stately stride tematically swoop down on the crane in droves, and the attacks were fierce ind vicious.

The crane stood the assaults with indifference for awhile, but finally the fowl from the swamps figured out a method of retaliation, and it was effectual. In some way the crane learned that sparrow was a pretty sweet morsel. From the time she learned it she feasted on sparrows. Singapore is a city having dealings in one way or another with every people to the north, east, south and west of it, including all the larger islands. Money reaches Singapore by the boatload and is distributed as liberally. It is a sort of clearing house for the east, and the Malay and the Javanese jostle against the American and the Hollander at the counters of the banking houses.

For five years I was what is called the transfer agent at Singapore. Provided with a steam launch and a trusty crew, I received or sent out all the hard money arriving and departing. Except in case of four or five lines of steamers, no money is received at the wharf. All the native craft lie at anchor to discharge or receive. There are several reasons for this, but the main one is to save time at the banking houses. The money will arrive in bags or boxes and is in copper, brass, silver and gold. It has been counted and tagged, but it must be gone over again. A Malay Chinaman or a Borneo trader would rob his blind grandmother. If he has tagged a box "$1,000," you can be sure that it is short from $30 to $100. Assisted by two clerks, I boarded the craft and recounted, retagged and resealed the treasure and, after giving a certificate of the correct amount, loaded it in the launch and deposited it on shore. My work was anything but easy. Every consignment carried counterfeit coins to be worked off on me, and every native was up to all kinds of tricks to come out ahead. Under the law I had a great deal of power, but there were scores of ways in which I could people I encountered the Chinese were ty of honest Chinese traders located at Singapore, as honest as the same number of foreigners, but as to the Chinese afloat I never met a square man. I found he would dispatch what was left. Many If "jacky" has one failing in the kind of liar and swindler. What purported to be silver bars would turn out | male bird is the master of the situato be lead thinly coated, gold ingots would be a deception and a snare, and they would even go to the pains of counterfeiting such cheap coins that it takes 22 of them to make an American cent. It was stipulated in my bond that I should make good all losses arising through any carelessness of counting or handling, and there was never a moment when my vigilance could be relaxed. Almost at the beginning of my career I had business with a Chinese trader named Whang Ton. That was the name he gave, and he pretended to deal in honest goods, but I have no tols." doubt he was an out and out pirate. He came into the port about three times a year, and he had ten times too much money aboard for an honest trader. He never disputed my count or tried to work off bad coin on me and er ass.-Tanner.' in this was an exception. He won my gratitude if not my respect in this matter, and after having dealt with him three or four times I ceased to watch him for tricks. In three years he came into port at least 12 times, and he never brought less than $30,000 worth of stuff. He did not always have the same junk, but his men were always the same. His money was of all nations and all coinage, and it was fair to believe that be robbed all alike. As there were no charges against him I did not think best to say anything ashore, and so Whang Ton arrived and departed without let or hindrance. On what turned out to be his last visit, so far as I know, he brought only about $10,000 to be exchanged, and he informed me that he had decided to leave the sea and settle down ashore. He was more communicative than I had ever known him to be before, but there were only two or three points I remembered afterward. One was his retirement from trade, and the other was about a Philippine craft lying astern of him. She had brought in $28,000 to be exchanged, and I was to put the money aboard of her that evening. He asked many questions about her, as I remembered later, and I answered all as far as could and gave no weight to the matter. While I received and shipped mostly between 9 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m., it happened now and then that a craft wanted to sail after hours, and so I stretched a point in her favor and charged a percentage. This percentage was to cover my increased risk. In the case of the Philippine craft the money was to be on board at 6 o'clock, which was an hour after dark at that season of the year. It was placed in the launch at 4:30, and I steamed out to a Malay craft and counted and resealed the $28,000 she had aboard. Then I spent 15 minutes talking with plains that I don't answer her notes." the captain of an American whaler and

He said he had overlooked | WHAT "JACKY" GETS TO EAT IN a box containing about a thousand dollars and was anxious to have it counted and credited with the rest. As he had a basket of wine and a box of cigars for me, I could not well refuse, and I went aboard with my two clerks to rush the count through. Five armed men were left in the launch, and I had no anxiety. We had counted half the money and old Whang Ton was standing by with a grin on his face when five or six natives who had sneaked into the cabin suddenly flung themselves upon us, and we were made prisoners. At the same moment a dozen of the crew dropped over the rail into the launch and made a fierce attack, and in two minutes she was captured and

With these staples as a no one's business to question the junk, and as, she had a fair wind she reeled off the miles until midnight and then ran close to the Spanish Island and set us ashore and towed our launch after the navy regulations require the issuus. Our boat was stripped of arms and coal, and all we could do was to find an anchorage for her and wait to be taken off. It was 3 o'clock next day before this event happened and six hours later when we reached Singapore. Of course a searching vessel was sent out, and later on old Whang Ton was hunted for high and low, but he somehow got clear off with every dollar of that money and settled down somewhere to live on the fat of the land.

the American Navy Is Better Fed Than Any Other Navy In the World. What It Costs the Officers to Run the Wardroom Mess,

The United States government gives its sailors only 30 cents a day each to live on, but the American navy is better fed than any other navy in the world. In fact, "jacky" lives better than the average mechanic on shore.

As the appetite of a seafaring man cannot be appeased by angel food the provisions are of the most substantial I kind.

In the olden days no fresh meat was included in the navy ration, and "jacky", was compelled to subsist largely on corned beef, known in the sailor vernacular as "salt horse," owing to the fact that some unscrupulous contractor at one time long ago passed off horseflesh for beef in a navy supply. The barrel in which the salt meat is kent is to this day known as the "harness cask."

BATH OF THE ORANGE.
The Fruit Needs Much Grooming Before It Is Ready For Market.
Fresh from the tree an orange is still very much alive, with the oil cells expanded and the mystery of growth not yet suspended. Cut off from the sap supply, a change takes place. The skin draws closer to the pulp and gives off moisture that would cause sweating if the fruit were packed at once. But first these dust stained travelers must have a bath.

Rare and Curious Gems.

The rarest and costliest of gems, though not always esteemed the most beautiful, are pigeon's blood rubies, fine opals and diamonds that are pure but shed a distinct glow of blue or pink. A very perfect pearl of generous size and lustrous skin, tinted a rarely beautiful golden green, was valued unset at over £300. A faultless green pearl is very rare.

A curious stone is the alexandrite. It is a dark green stone that is polished, cut and set, very like a fine topaz or amethyst, in large showy rings surrounded by diamonds. By the light of day the alexandrite has no special beauty save its fine luster, but directly i shaft of artificial light strikes the dull stone deep gleams of red flash out of the green, and under the gas or in the firelight one ignorant of this vagary would instantly pronounce it a uby.

How Piccadilly Was Named.

It's curious how the names of towns and streets come from something that has been the fashion of the day. Who knows where the word "Piccadilly" originated from, the name of that wonderful street of which it is written that "some make love and some make poetry in Piccadill?" The street was built by a tailor named Higgins, whose fortune was made in a kind of collar called Piccadel or Pickadill or Piccafilley, which was worn by all the beaus of the day. Of course it is not meant that the street as it stands today was built by him, but he erected a few houses to which he gave the name the street now bears.

A Thoroughbred.

Don't be a thoroughbred. A thoroughbred is well enough in cattle and hogs, but very disgusting among men, for the reason that among men a thoroughbred means a man who devotes too much time to having fun, to being a good fellow. Make a specialty of reliability, industry, fairness. Make your specialty a worthy one. Instead of teeing how late you can stay out at right go to bed at regular hours. Sleep will do you more good than a good time. There is no better man than the good citizen, the good husband, the good father, the good son. A thoroughbred is never noted in these directions. -Atchison Globe.

T0INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

The Public for a Time Stand Aghast for Their Vory Boldpess and Defiance-The Government Alone Can Check Their Abuses.

Washington, June 19 .- The industrial commission has received and will print as a part of its permanent report a number of affidavits making reply to the testimony of Mr. John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company before the commission in 1899. These affidavits are by Hon. F. S. Monnett, former attorney-general of Ohio; James W. Lee of the Pure Oil company; M. L. Lockwood and Chas. B. Matthews of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Matthews's testimony relates to the operations of the Vacuum Oil company, which he seeks to demonstrate is a branch of the Standard Oil company. Mr. Lee says that is not true that he ever admitted that the Pure Oil company is itself a trust or that he attempted to sell any of his independent oil company interests to the Standard company. Mr. Lockwood submits affidavits to substantiate his; statement before the commission to the effect that the Standard company was alone in putting oil in tanks to be shipped for 2 cents a gallon to Germany while people in Texas and Arkansas, where there was no competi-tion, were paying 25 cents a gallon. Mr. Archbold had said there was not a word of truth in this statement. Mr. Monnett's statement is a general reply to Mr. Archbold's testimony so far as it applies to the operations of the Standard company in Ohio. He says not only the Standard company, but other oil companies like the Buckeye Pipe Line company, the Ohio Oil company and the Solar Refining com-pany connected with it. "Each and every one have openly and notoriously violated their charter and have violated the statutes of the state, criminally and civily, and are now so violating them, and did not dare to come into court and answer the charges of such violation."

He says the charges openly made and not contradicted, the influence of these companies defeated Joseph P. Bradbury for the supreme court of the state because he was supposed to be antagonistic to them; he also charges "that they have openly and notoriously evaded the taxes due the state by making returns upon their property, in many instances estimated at less than 10 per cent of its real value considering the earning capacity of the property." He asserts that the company has evaded instead of courting investigation of his bribery charges, and he adds "Through their pipe line charges and by means of their monopoly in transportation, the Standard Oil combinations continue their monopoly in handling oil in Ohio, as every consumer of oil in this state can verify by his pocketbook. "Campaigns come and go; commissions investigate and legislatures meet and adjourn, and magazine articles are written and read, and yet, through their monopolistic and criminal exactions the Standard Oil combinations of transportation and distribution thereof, levy tribute upon the owner of the oil rock and exact from the consumer of the refined oil and its bi-products this unnatural profit. The public are its victims; the little band of law violators owning the controlling shares are the beneficiaries of the plunder. public for a short time stand The aghast for their very boldness and defiance. The government alone can check their abuses."

UNPARALLELED AVALANCHE Swept Into the Potomac River in West

Virginia. Keyser, W. va., June 19.-An avalanche unparalleled in the West Virginia mountains occurred at Hopeyille, Grant county, 38 miles from here. Great sections of the mountain side along the Potomac river for two miles rushed down.into the beautiful valley. Thousands of Lons of forest trees, immense rocks and earth came down and the home of Mrs. Andrew Ours, a widow, was completely wrecked. The 22-year-old daughter of Mrs. Ours is in a dying condition. A little grandchild who was spending the night with Mrs. Ours was grabbed by her when the first warning came, but escape was impossible, and when found in the morning the grandmother was buried to her waist in the debris, holding the child in her arms above the chilly mud and stone in which she was fastened so tightly that after many efforts neighbors found it necessary to literally pull the bruised body out, leaving her clothes buried. The child only will recover. Miss Ours's body was found during the day. All day hundreds of visitors have gone to the scene and otuers from far and near are going by carriage and horseback, there being no near railroad point to visit the scene of the most remarkable mountain occurrence the state has ever known.

A MICHIGAN GIRL

Lured Into Depravity by a Married Man from Kansas.

Buffalo, June 19 .--- In the arrest of Grace Wheeler in this city the police believe they have unearthed a case of sad moral depravity in which the girl, who is only 16, was the victim. The girl claims she is the grandlaughter of a Michigan Methodist minister and the niece of another. The police have also arrested George Turlott, 45 years old, with whom the poor girl has been living, although the man says he is mairied and has a wife and two children in Galena, Kan.

According to the girl's story, she met Tarlott in Kalamazoo, where she lived, and he induced her to run away with him and come to Buffalo. He obtained a place for her as a waitress. in a concert saloon, and subsequently as a clerk in Knox's store.

Turlott, the girl asserts, would come to her counter and buy a large bill of goods, for which she was required to make out a small check, thus cheating the proprietor. She says she was required to steal money from the store, solicit on the streets at night and do other degrading things to satisfy .Turlott, in addition to posing as his wife. All this is denied by Turlott except, the police say, that Turlott admitted that he secured goods from Knox as described by the girl.

WORK OF A CYCLONE.

Demolished Buildings and Fatally In jured Several People.

Huron, S. D., June 17 .- A cyclone passed over the extreme southeast corner of Beadle county Saturday afternoon, injuring 10 persons and destroying much property. The two-story house on the McCormack farm was demolished and Mr. McCormack his wife and three children were seri ously injured. The father and his 7 year-old son may die. All were blown against a barbed-wire fence and horribly cut and bruised. Every building on the farm was demolished.

A school house was also destroyed near by. The Gardiner residence five miles distant was destroyed and Mrs. Gardiner was badly hurt. On the Palmer farm the house was unroofed and one person injured. Mr. Gillespie's house was wrecked and two persons were injured, one man having his leg broken. The storm came suddenly and was accompanied by a tremendous downpour of rain and intense dark ness. When the McCormack family was found all were covered with mud and were either dazed or wholly un conscious. Dr. Foxton of this city was called to attend the injured. So complete was the destruction of the Mc Cormack house that not a wagon box full of debris could be gathered up and no vestige of furniture can be found.

Distressing Case of a Woman With Five Children.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 17 .- Too proud to ask her neighbors for any more food to feed herself and her family of five children, Mrs. John Makin died at her home, 4 Earle street, Central Falls, from starvation. Mr. Makin returned home after completing a sentence at the state farm, where he had been committed on complaint of his wife some months ago because he drank and would not contribute to the family support. He was greeted by his five children, who pointed to the room off the kitchen, where their mother lay dead.

While her husband was serving out his sentence Mrs. Makin endeav-ored to provide food for her children, ranging from 15 years to infancy, the youngest being born while the father was in jail. The city provided some lood for the family up to two weeks ngo, when Mrs. Makin declared that the would starve to death rather than ask for more help from the city.

Militia Company and Police Preserve Order.

Greenville, S. C., June 19 .- Fire which broke out in a bakery destroyed an entire block in the business portion of this city. The loss will reac $75,000. The fire at one time threa ened the entire business section (Greenville.

In order to save the stocks in the buildings near the fire, the goods were carried to the streets. While the people were fighting the flames, negro thieves were discovered looting the piles of goods. The thieves were being augmented rapidly by a mixed crowd of whites and blacks, when a local military company was summoned to the scene. The militiamen, with the aid of the police, preserved order. The Beattie block, in which the Western Union was located, was destroyed and communication with the outside world was interrupted until late in the afternoon.

Getting Along Nicely.

Washington, June 19.-Dr. Rixey, after his evening visit, on leaving the White House at 10:30 last night, said: "Mrs. McKinley is getting along very nicely. She continues to improve. She is sitting up daily. She sat up yesterday about two hours. She saw several friends."

The president was accompanied on his drive by Sevetary Hitchcock. Secretary and Mrs. Long, Miss Wilson, Mrs. Charles Emory Smith and a number of other official and personal friends called during the day, but there were no callers last night.
